

Portugal reverses its ban

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Portuguese military today reversed its decision to hand over the Socialist newspaper Republica to Communist printers who forced the daily to close four weeks ago.

The issue, which sparked a hot dispute among the two leftist parties and the provisional government, was sent back to the army's Revolutionary Council, the supreme political authority in Portugal.

Members of the workers' committee, visibly disappointed, said the paper would not be reopened before Wednesday or Thursday.

The military was to have reopened the Republica on Monday under its Socialist management, but gave the key to the building to the Communist printers instead when the editors said they would not resume publication unless the government agreed to conditions that would prevent a new shutdown.

Earlier today, a Socialist party spokesman reported that there had been further negotiations between the paper's Socialist officials and COPCON, the military security force charged with reopening the paper.

A COPCON statement issued at the same time accused the Republica officials of "disrespect for the right to work and nonobservance of the decisions of the Revolutionary Council." It said this was harmful to "the advance of the revolutionary process."

Republica is the last major Lisbon newspaper not under Communist control. The government closed the paper after the printers seized it and only agreed to return it to the Socialists after the party threatened to pull out of the provisional government.

On Monday, when Maj. Dias Ferreira of COPCON arrived to reopen the building, chief editor Raul Rego and administrator Gustavo Soromenho handed him a list of conditions which they said must be met to prevent another attempt by the Communists to take over.

They demanded that the owners be given the right to name shop foremen, that printers opposed to the paper's editorial content be allowed to move to other jobs and that they be allowed to fire the business manager, who supported the printers.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Vol. 107, No. 120 Sedalia, Mo., Tuesday, June 17, 1975 18 Pages—Fifteen Cents

Ambulance subsidy requested by firm

Although he could offer no specific monetary amount, Kenneth Joe Wasson, owner of Pettis County Ambulance, Monday night asked the City Council to subsidize his three-ambulance operation. Wasson said he would be able to tell the council at its next meeting, July 7, how much money he would need.

Wasson claims the increased cost of maintaining his ambulances, paying his employees and buying equipment makes it necessary for the city or the Pettis County Court, or both to subsidize him.

Wasson's attorney, James Durley, told the council: "Something has got to be done in our area, or we won't have any (ambulance service)."

Durley filed the company's 1973 income tax returns with City Clerk Ralph Dedrick and invited councilmen to visit the ambulance company office at 626 East Fifth to inspect the certificates held by Wasson and his employees.

According to Durley, Pettis County Ambulance made $29,749.70 in 1974 and spent $33,847.31. He said Wasson and his wife, who is a licensed practical nurse, do not draw a salary from the company. Wasson has a total of four fulltime employees and six part-time workers.

"Private enterprise cannot make it in this business," Durley said. "Maybe it is time for the city or the hospital to take it over."

If the company is not funded, Wasson has said he will cut back his services and operate on "an appointment basis only."

During a break in the council meeting, Wasson said, "we just won't run emergencies."

Wasson indicated he would remove the red lights and the word "ambulance" from his vehicles and transport persons from hospitals to their homes or another hospital. He said he could make money this way because he would not have to meet state ambulance requirements that demand emergency equipment and two licensed persons per ambulance.

Fourth Ward Republican Robert Eidson asked how much money Wasson would need to stay in business.

"I have no idea at this time ... we will just have to sit down and talk nickel-to-nickel," Wasson replied.

Wasson told the council he has had the business since March 1, 1969 "and my wife and I have only been away one weekend since then."

During the council break, Wasson said: "I've had my fill of police calls and J-2s (injury accidents)."

Durley said if the company could get money from the city it would also try to get funds from the County Court. Wasson said he has already talked with the court about a subsidy. The court has taken no action, however.

Durley and Wasson said it would not be fair to the city to be the sole supporter of the ambulance company.

During the discussion, Mayor Jerry Jones asked what Wasson would do if a subsidy is not granted. Jones said Wasson threatened to quit the ambulance business in 1973, when the council rejected his first appeal for a subsidy.

In Italian elections

Communists make gains

ROME (AP) — Strong Communist gains in nationwide local elections increased pressure today for inclusion of the party in the national government for the first time since 1947 and caused a sharp drop in stock prices.

Panicky selling reduced prices an average of 7 per cent at the opening of the Milan stock market, Italy's largest. Such big industrials as Fiat, Pirelli, Montedison and Snia Viscosa fell 10 per cent.

Industrial circles foresaw negative repercussions for the Italian economy, with a further slowdown in investment and a sharp increase in the illegal export of capital.

The Communists ran fewer than 600,000 votes behind the Christian Democrats in the voting Sunday and Monday and their former allies, the Socialists, also made gains.

"Italians showed they know that the Communist party is the real bastion of freedom," the jubilant party secretary, Enrico Berlinguer, declared as cheering young supporters packed the street in front of the party headquarters in downtown Rome.

"The Communist party is indispensable for the salvation and rebirth of the nation," Berlinguer asserted.

The elections Monday were for 15 of the nation's 20 regional legislatures, advisory councils in 86 of the 94 provinces and municipal councils in 6,300 of the 8,000 cities and towns. But the campaign was fought on national issues, and the outcome was certain to produce demands for the dissolution of Parliament and national elections.

For the time being, however, the Communists did not call for the resignation of Christian Democratic Premier Aldo Moro and his minority cabinet. Informed sources said they planned to move with caution and moderation and would concentrate on solidifying their new power in the local governments.

Although Berlinguer has abandoned open criticism of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and its bases in Italy, the election result was also certain to send shock waves through the White House and the State Department. Washington's concern over the growing Communist strength in both Italy and Portugal has been apparent, and President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger visited Rome two weeks ago in an attempt to strengthen NATO's ties with Italy. The Communists accused them of trying to aid the Christian Democrats in the election.

Jerry Iuchs, Civil Defense director, said Monday night a storm system with tornado cells began moving across the state Monday afternoon dumping heavy rain and hail.

Mini-railroad work

Railroad work around Sedalia is not unique, but a unique railroad was in need of repair in Liberty Park. Park department workers John Urton, left, and Dallas Smith, helped put new ties under the small tracks Tuesday with the hope the work would cure a recent problem with the rail line. The train has been jumping its tracks and stopping. However, no one has been injured. The park department first attempted to weld the rails but it did not solve the problem.

CATV decision delayed

The City Council again delayed a final decision on the Cablevision rate increase Monday night, passing a resolution calling for additional financial data on the company.

The council required the accounting firm of Craven, Weishaar, Wooldridge and Dooley to determine the anticipated annual profit margin of Cablevision based upon the projected subscription rate of $6.15 per month. The resolution also requests Cablevision to submit copies of two financial reports it is required to file annually with the Federal Communications Commission.

After this information has been given to the council, the resolution says, "the council shall finally consider and determine the said proposed franchise ordinance and rate."

The council had been expected to act on the ordinance and the $6.15 rate Monday night. City Counselor Robert Fritz had been ordered to draw up the new ordinance two weeks ago when the $6.15 rate was tentatively set.

After the meeting Monday night, Cablevision manager Lynn Harrison said, "I'm a little disappointed. On two occasions the Wooldridge report has been accepted by the council."

"The information the council has asked for (the FCC reports) is an ownership and signal carrying document," Harrison said.

Of the two reports required by the FCC and requested by the council, Harrison said, the second contains no new information the council did not receive in the auditor's initial report on Cablevision's finances.

Auditor William Wooldridge conducted the audit of Cablevision at its home offices in Tulsa, Okla. He reported that Cablevision had been losing money in Sedalia and would lose more without a rate increase.

Cablevision has requested the council give it a monthly rate of $6.90, up from $5.90. Harrison said that would give the company a rate of return of 6.4 per cent. The 25-cent raise proposed by the council will give the company a rate of return of only 3.2 per cent, Harrison said.

"If they think that is fair," Harrison said, "they should tell us."

Harrison said his home offices in Tulsa "can't believe this."

City, county pounded by storm

A tornado touched down at the junction of Highways 52 and 65 near Cole Camp at 4:03 p.m. Monday and tornadoes were sited Monday afternoon near Otterville, Hermitage and Lowry City, according to the Sedalia-Pettis County Civil Defense. There were no reports of damage or injuries, however.

Jerry Iuchs, Civil Defense director, said Monday night a storm system with tornado cells began moving across the state Monday afternoon dumping heavy rain and hail.

Although a tornado was reported to have touched down near Otterville at 4:30 p.m., Iuchs said Cooper County sheriff's officials could find no evidence of the tornado. "In some outlying areas communications are bad and reports are sketchy," Iuchs noted.

The reports of tornadoes near Hermitage and Lowry City also were unconfirmed, Iuchs said.

The storm that hit Sedalia about 11:30 a.m. dumped 2.20 inches of rain on the city in about two hours, Sedalia Water Department employee Raymond Dump said. "We've had 3.06 inches of rain so far this month," Dump added. "That isn't so bad. Several years ago we had 13 to 14 inches in one month."

Total rainfall for June, 1974, was only 2.65 inches.

Although Monday's storm didn't wash out any Sedalia streets, "too much rain in too short a time" flooded the underpass on Broadway near Smith-Cotton High School, Vernon Ditton, city street superintendent, said.

Ditton noted flash floods of at least two inches or more generally flood the Broadway underpass, which was closed to traffic from noon to 2 p.m. "Trucks

Natural gas probe

Panel subpoenas records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven major natural gas producers have been ordered to turn over confidential records of their gas reserves to a congressional panel after thwarting efforts by the Federal Trade Commission to obtain the same records.

The subcommittee that subpoenaed the records is investigating whether the natural gas industry has been underestimating U.S. natural gas reserves in order to persuade the Federal Power Commission to allow higher prices.

The trade commission has been trying to obtain many of those records since 1970 but the companies have been successful in court actions in keeping the information confidential.

Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., of the House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on oversight and investigations said he expects to receive all of the data by July 22. But the counsel of the subcommittee says the gas companies cannot go to court to block the subpoenas.

When the panel opened hearings last week, it received a Federal Trade Commission staff report showing that in one sampling, reserves reported by the industry's American Gas Association were 24 per cent less than what individual company records showed.

The FTC report recommended action against these firms and the AGA, concluding that they were "concertedly maintaining a deficient natural gas reserve reporting program" to influence prices.

The FPC, which regulates the interstate price of natural gas, uses supply data in calculating what the price ceilings should be.

Monday's subpoenas were approved, 10 to 1, in executive session of the subcommittee with only Republican Rep. James M. Collins of Texas voting no. The subpoenas were to be served on the chief executive officers of the American Gas Association, Standard Oil of California, Exxon, Mobile Corp., Shell Oil Co., Standard Oil of Indiana, Tenneco and Texaco Inc. Four other companies had volunteered information for the FTC investigation.

Moss said that if the records of the seven companies follow the same pattern set by those of the other four, this clearly would establish the unreliability of the reserve figures used by the American Gas Association.

Moss said he would have to seek contempt of Congress citations if they do not appear with their records.

A spokesman for the American Gas Association said the association would comply as far as it is able. Spokesmen for the seven companies had no comment or could not be reached.

Area missile silos modification is set

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Work will begin early next year on a 106,000-square-foot building at Whiteman Air Force Base as the first step in a modification of missile silos that eventually will bring 1,200 people into this area.

The building will be put up by the Air Force's Space and Missile Systems Organization, and will be located near the present headquarters of the 351st Strategic Missile Wing. The building, due for completion in October, 1976, will serve as a base of operations for the silo modification program.

Maj. Joseph Otterson, assistant deputy commander for operations, sketched the broad outlines of the Whiteman project in a talk Monday before the Sedalia Rotary Club.

Capt. Terrel Boyack, base information officer, confirmed the project Tuesday. He said the major work on the silos will get underway in April of 1978 and will be completed in September of 1979. It will be the first major modification at Whiteman since the mid-60s.

Boyack called the project a "force improvement program," and said it would involve the "hardening" of existing missile silos, including work on associated silo hardware. There will be no modification of the missiles themselves, Boyack said.

The hardening project, which presumably will include thicker concrete covers for the missile silos, is designed to make the Minutemen less vulnerable to enemy attack.

There are 150 modified Minuteman I missiles in the Whiteman wing, spread out over 16,000 square miles of West Central Missouri.

Prime contractor for the project will be the Boeing Aerospace Co. of Seattle, Wash. Boeing personnel and other subcontractors will total about 1,200 people, said Boyack. He said most of the workers would be brought in from the outside, but that some local hiring would be done.

The job is scheduled to be completed in April of 1980.

Boyack said the large building that will be constructed beginning next year will

Cosmetics take on a new face

If you've ever wondered what's in those tubes and jars of cosmetics, or if there really is a difference between low-cost and expensive brands, a new labeling law may help, reports Miss Karen Stein, extension family economics and management specialist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Starting March 31, all cosmetic manufacturers will be required to list ingredients on product labels. If the product package is too small, ingredients will be listed on an attached tag or card, she says.

The label requirement may help consumers make comparisons between products. They can judge whether a more expensive product is worth the extra cost by comparing ingredients. It also may help some persons determine before buying if he or she may get an allergic reaction.

Ingredients will be listed prominently and in decreasing order of predominance.

Tomatoes taste delicious stewed

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: We enjoy your recipes in our paper and intend to try your Copy Cat Tomato Relish. In the meantime could you tell me the proportions for making our favorite stewed tomatoes from our own home-grown vegetables? I am enclosing the label from the brand of stewed tomatoes we always use. —HOME CANNER.

DEAR HOME CANNER: After your letter came we bought half a dozen brands of stewed tomatoes, including the one you use. On tasting them, observing their color and texture and measuring the amount of juice to vegetables, we evolved the following recipe.

Our stewed tomatoes are much less sweet than the commercially canned ones because we kept the sugar added low and our tomatoes probably weren't as sweet as those used by commercial canners. The color of our stewed tomatoes corresponded to the color of the fresh tomatoes we used and the pieces stayed whole because they were thickly and uniformly cut as are those of commercial canners; in using home-grown tomatoes, it's a good idea to choose odd sizes for the tomato juice needed and reserve those of uniform size for the tomato pieces. The juice in the commercial can, when the vegetables were lightly drained, ran from about 1/2 to two-thirds cup and we tried to maintain this ratio. I hope you approve our efforts. —C.B.

HOME CANNED STEWED TOMATOES

3 pounds ripe tomatoes, about 9 medium
1 cup thick homemade tomato juice, see below

1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine)
1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) celery
1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) green pepper

1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper

Bring a large saucepan of water to a boil and remove from heat; at once add tomatoes and let stand until skins can be slipped off easily — about 1 minute. Remove skins and cut away stem ends.

Cut in thick uniform pieces — halves, quarters or slices, depending on size of tomatoes. Into a 5-quart saucepot turn the tomatoes and remaining ingredients; stir to mix; cook over moderate heat, stirring several times, until mixture boils; boil gently about 3 minutes. Leaving 1/2-inch headspace and preferably using a wide-mouth funnel, ladle tomatoes into hot, clean, sealed wide-mouth pint jars. Wipe top edge of jars with a damp towel. Add lids and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes after boiling temperature is reached. Remove and cool on a wire rack or folded towel. Label, noting date, and store in a dark cool place. Makes about 4 pints.

TOMATO JUICE

For each pint of tomato juice wanted, use about 3 pounds firm, juicy, ripe tomatoes. Rinse tomatoes; quarter and cut away stem ends. In a large saucepot over low heat simmer tomatoes, stirring occasionally, just until soft; do not add water because tomatoes should cook in their own juice. Strain tomatoes through a food mill, a pureeing utensil. (To remove any seeds, you may pour through a mesh strainer.) For a thicker juice, simmer uncovered about 10 minutes to evaporate some of the liquid.

Groups list women's movement goals

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 70 women's groups ranging from the YWCA to the Junior League to the National Organization for Women have contributed proposals for an agenda of goals for the women's movement.

Their goal is to use International Women's Year for a grassroots definition of what women want and an agreement on common goals.

The Women's Action Alliance, an umbrella group that solicited plans from the diverse groups, will divulge more details in news conferences later this week in New York, Washington and Mexico City, where the IWY conference will be starting.

"Many people thought the women's movement as we are now defining it was too disparate and too scattered," Alliance director Ruth Abram said in an interview.

"They were wrong — the responses are still coming in from our original solicitation in March. And they are responding with a tremendous joy as if they had been waiting for someone to ask," she said.

"People had said we would only get a marshmallow-type of agenda," she said. "This was also wrong. The agenda contains 11 issues that can be defined as primary to all the groups."

These goals include equal access to education; economic power and political participation; creation of a comprehensive child care system; economic and legal recognition of homemakers' work; consideration of pregnancy-related disabilities as normal temporary job disabilities, and a prohibition of discrimination based on sexual preferences.

The draft agenda was sketched out briefly in May to the domestic IWY commission by MS Magazine editor Pat Carbine, a commission member. Jill Ruckelshaus is the head of the domestic commission.

Ms. Abram, who prefers the Ms. designation, said the alliance will ask the Ruckelshaus commission to endorse the women's agenda at its July meeting and will present it to President Ford by the end of the year.

Soiled book covers require some care

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those strategically placed gum ball machines in nearly every grocery store. My two-year-old used to cause havoc every time we went in or out of a store and I really ran the gauntlet as it got worse all the time. Now I have an old change purse that I put a few pennies in and that is her candy money. She understands she has to use her own money for this. At every store she takes out a penny as we go in and happily clutches that very important money. — KATHY.

DEAR KATHY — I can understand your Peeve. It seems to me it might be turned to an advantage as this situation certainly provides the opportunity for teaching children they cannot have everything they want just when they want it. Life does not work that way and they are going to have to learn sometime. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — For traveling we made an effective sunshade for the car window by using black nylon net folded to three or four thicknesses. Roll the car window down about an inch, place the upper edges of the folded net in the space and roll the window up to hold it there. The net cuts down the heat and glare that come in the window on the sunny side of the car and does not interfere with vision to any extent.

(Polly's note: Do be sure your vision is not obstructed.) — FAYTHE.

DEAR POLLY — When following a recipe in a cookbook where one or more recipes appear on the same page, I find it much easier to follow the one in use by cutting a square in a sheet of paper (color preferred) and placing it over the page. The recipe being followed is the only thing that shows. This way one does not accidentally read part of another recipe and end up with a disaster. — JULIA.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — After years of enjoying learning I need some information about cleaning the backs of some old books I inherited. The insides are in mint condition but the backs are soiled, some from perspiration and some with coffee cup rings. Thank you for any help. — MRS. J.R.C.

DEAR MRS. J.R.C. — Sorry you failed to say what the backs of your books are made of. Spots and soil on cloth backs will sometimes disappear after using an art gum eraser.

If the backs are leather some authorities suggest using petroleum jelly for reconditioning but not spot removal. Some libraries use a commercial product for reconditioning leather to keep leather-backed books in good shape. — POLLY. (NEA)

Compulsive cleaner unnerves her sister

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem. It's my sister. Every time Hilda comes over she takes it upon herself to clean the house. Hilda isn't in the place five minutes before she asks for a cloth to get at "those fingerprints on the wall." Then she grabs the kitchen ladder and drags it around the house—carrying a broom with a towel wrapped around it so she can "wipe the webs out of the corners of the ceiling."

When Hilda has dinner with us she examines each piece of silverware. More than once, she has taken a fork or a spoon to the sink and washed it before using it. This really burns me up.

How does one deal with such a person who means well but gets on my nerves? — High Fever

Dear H.F.: One tells "the person" to please behave like a guest and not an Inspection Officer from the Department of Public Health.

One then informs "the person" that there will be no more housecleaning, silverware-polishing or cobweb-chasing. You say your sister means well but I'm not so sure I agree with you.

Dear Ann Landers: This concerns the "Not So Happy Hooker" who wrote that she was a prostitute, sick and tired of the rotten mess she had made of her life, and that she wasn't getting any younger.

The gal wanted to know how to find a decent job, and what she could say when questioned about her "previous employment." You told her to contact an employment agency and to keep her trap shut about her "history."

Please let the women know that the best place to go is to her state's employment service. That agency not only advises clients on jobs, but will counsel them, offer vocational testing and, if necessary, refer them to the appropriate place for vocational or educational training. All at no charge. And please tell "Unhappy" that they aren't interested in her past—just her future. — Alan Kroker, Michigan Employment Security Commission

Dear Alan K: That's what I call a helping hand! I hope "Not So Happy" lives in Michigan, sees your letter and introduces herself to you soon. The gal gave me no name or address.

I'm stuck in the house seven nights a week babysitting my little brother and sister. I am responsible for everything they do wrong, but I'm not allowed to correct them. They hit me, but I'm not allowed to hit them back. When I complain, Mom says I'm older and should be able to cope with them.

I miss a lot of after-school events and good times with friends because of my "duties."

Mom works a 3 to 11 p.m. shift, so I must rush home from school five days a week. On Saturday and Sunday nights she and her boyfriend go out. (Mom is divorced.)

Is this fair: — Used Too Much Dear Used: No, it is not fair and I hope I can help your mother understand what she is doing to you.

First, she is using you as hired help — which is a gross injustice. You should not be denied a social life. Second, if you are to be in charge of younger siblings you should have the authority to discipline them.

I suggest you enlist the help of a third party — a favorite teacher, guidance counselor, or perhaps an understanding relative. Your mother should hire an older woman to give you some relief.

Mercantile investigation is launched

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office here has launched a preliminary inquiry into possible wrong doing involving secret political funds of officers and former officers of Mercantile Trust Co., the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says it has learned.

The newspaper said in a copyright story in this morning's edition that David Harlan, head of the office's criminal division, was named to head the inquiry.

U.S. Atty. Donald J. Stohr disqualified himself from the inquiry because he was previously with a law firm that now represents Mercantile, the newspaper said.

According to the Globe-Democrat, the inquiry concerns possible income tax evasion, possible misapplication of bank funds and possible illegal political contributions from the bank.

The only comment from the U.S. attorney's office, the newspaper said, was from Harlan, who said, "We are currently in the process of assessing the situation with the intent of referring our findings to the appropriate federal agencies."

The inquiry reportedly centers on a private political trust fund of the late Kenton R. Cravens, chairman of the board of the bank, and William J. Phelan Jr., his son-in-law, said the Globe-Democrat.

It is alleged that between $294,000 and $900,000 in political contributions were made between 1964 and 1970 through the trust.

Name was omitted

The name of one volunteer in the weekend Muscular Dystrophy Carnival held at Griff's Burger Bar lot, Broadway and Massachusetts, was omitted from information supplied to The Democrat-Capitol which appeared in Monday's Democrat and Tuesday's Capital.

Linda Gage, 2501 South Stewart, was one of 15 "Happy Helpers," a group of girls, ages 11 to 14, who helped run the carnival.

Officers elected by area group

The Pettis County advisory council for the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corporation (MVHRDC) elected officers Monday night in a special meeting held in the Municipal Building.

New officers for 1975 include Ralph Lee, 400 North Ohio, chairman; Mrs. Glen Wissman, 318 West 20th, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Teresa Laslo, 1601 South Barrett, secretary.

About 13 MVHRDC advisory council members and staff personnel discussed organization priorities for 1975.

According to Mrs. Laslo, members were asked to fill out questionnaires listing priorities and special problem areas they saw in Pettis County. Topics then were discussed from the various lists.

Increased legal aid for low income persons, the need for more and better housing costing less than $10,000, better elderly care and a drug abuse program were among topics discussed.

Council member John Hequembourg, also accepted a recommendation that he serve on the regional MVHRDC board of directors.

The MVHRDC works in Pettis, Johnson, Lafayette, Saline, Chariton, Carroll, and Ray Counties.

Three people die in wrecks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three people died in Missouri traffic accidents Monday—two of them in the collision of a car and a 20-ton crane near Eldon, on the north edge of the Lake of the Ozarks.

Killed on Highway 52 two miles west of Eldon were Paula L. Anticoli, 11, of Bellevue, Neb., and Larry D. Lang, 26, Independence, Mo.

The highway patrol said a 10-foot wide crane driven by Lang struck a bridge railing, then tipped over, striking the Anticoli car. The girl's parents and a sister were seriously injured.

A 26-year-old East Prairie, Mo. man, Larry Junior Wood, was killed Monday evening when the car in which he was riding skidded off a curve and overturned, trapping him inside.

"It is still my recommendation we cut the system off. There is no reason for us to stay in business without any incentive," he added.

During the pre-council session Monday night, Third Ward Democrat Bob Wells asked why the resolution was needed.

"Based on the advice of our counsel (Fritz) a resolution is a legal document and if the city gets in court litigation again this could be submitted as evidence," Mayor Jerry Jones said.

Fritz, who wrote the resolution, said, "The resolution, more than floor debate, is a record."

At the June 2 council meeting, Jones told Harrison the council's reasoning for granting a 25-cent increase would be given to Cablevision. Harrison said Monday night the information has not been provided.

"Some verification of the 25-cent increase was not justified in any manner," Harrison said.

Jones said the justification for the 25-cent raise will probably be provided when the council gets the requested information on Cablevision.

The Air Force has not revealed figures on the total cost of the Whiteman project.

Larry Melton, executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, said that although the program is long-range in nature, it will be "a real boost to the area, and we are quite pleased."

Melton expressed the hope that Boeing will again locate its administrative and security offices in Sedalia, as it did in previous modifications at Whiteman. "Sedalia's relationship with Boeing has been excellent in the past, and we're looking forward to working with them again," said Melton.

Gas, electricity rates go up for the third time

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — Increases in electric and gas rates, proposed by the Missouri Public Service Co., Kansas City, were reduced Monday by about one-half by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The commission authorized total increases effective July 1, of $5,593,684 in the company's gross annual revenues from electric service and $586,724 in gross annual revenue from gas service. The company originally requested an increase of $10,350,000 in electric rates and $941,000 in gas rates. None of the figures included gross receipts taxes.

The effect of the commission's ruling on Sedalia gas and electric rates could not be determined Tuesday by MPS Company officials in Kansas City. It was indicated it would probably take two or three days before the figures could be computed.

The increase, when announced, will mark the third rate increase this year for local MPS customers. The first rate hike, a 55-cent monthly increase, was put into effect Jan. 24. A second average increase of 67 cents per month was authorized in April.

The company requested the rate increases in order to expand power-generating facilities and to meet inflationary increases in operating costs.

Explaining its decision to not grant the full increases, the commission noted what it termed "the increasing distortion" of the company's electric load patterns. The peak demand on the hottest days of the year was 12 per cent greater in 1974 than in 1973. However, it was noted, total electricity sales were down last year.

Peak demand has forced the company to increase its generating capacity, the commission acknowledged, but, it noted, "that capacity is idle a great deal of the time." The commission recommended that a change be made in rate design to compel users during peak periods to bear the actual cost of their consumption.

Father feels probe of death will grow

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph Kopechne, whose daughter Mary Jo was killed in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car six years ago, thinks there will be new developments in her death by next year.

"Things will be breaking in the next year or two," said Kopechne in a telephone interview with The Boston Globe from his Swiftwater, Pa., home over the weekend. "I just have a feeling."

Kopechne did not elaborate on his feelings, and he was unavailable for further comment this week.

Kopechne and his wife, Gwendolyn, recently visited Chappaquiddick on Martha's Vineyard, where their 28-year-old daughter drowned in Kennedy's automobile after it ran off a bridge and into a tidal pool.

Kopechne talked with two people whose testimony in the inquest into his daughter's death was considered harmful to Kennedy.

Sheriff Christopher "Huck" Look, with whom Kopechne had a cup of coffee, had testified he saw the senator's car heading toward the ferry about 90 minutes after Kennedy claimed he was driving it there.

Subsidy

that have not turned out to be accurate," Jones told Wasson.

"I cannot keep on operating the way I am and losing money," Wasson said. "I will have to ... cut back."

Fourth Ward Democrat David Curry said the question of a subsidy should be settled and not allowed to "drag on for months."

City Counselor Robert Fritz said the word "subsidy" had been used too loosely and the correct term should be "contracted." Fritz said the city could either contract Wasson on an individual basis, paying him for each call within the city, or pay him a flat rate each month.

As for the cost the ambulance company charges, Fritz said he has little doubt the city could regulate the rates.

F. H. Rush, owner and operator of the Sedalia Ambulance Service, 3004 South Ingram, the only other local ambulance firm, Tuesday said "I have no intention of trying to milk money from the city. I don't need to." Rush's firm is located just outside the city limits, but has a city permit to operate.

"We've got two vehicles and one ordered and they all pass state regulations," he said. "We'll be able to provide ambulance service to Sedalians who need it." Asked what he would do if Wasson fails to obtain the city funds and reduces his services, Rush said, "We'll continue to be on call like we have been in the past ... we've got no plans at all to cutback any of our services."

First Ward Republican Allen Hawkins said the council should meet with the County Court before reaching a decision.

In other action Monday night, Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Ray Hendricks presented the council with plans to develop a new comprehensive city plan.

Hendricks asked for and received the council's permission for the commission to contract with the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission to draw up the new city plan.

The plan will cost $18,033 and take 45 weeks to complete. The city will have to pay a minimum of $3,000 for the project and a maximum of $6,000. The city's cost will depend upon whether the city receives money under the Community Development Act.

The city also opened the only bid for police cars, from Bryant Motor Co., Second and Kentucky. The bid was for six cars at a yearly lease of 8 1/2 cents per mile. This figure is 1 1/2 cents more per mile than the current figure.

Eidson, chairman of the police and fire committee, announced that policeman Roger Plankenhorn, a five-year veteran of the police department, is resigning effective July 6. Plankenhorn cited personal and family reasons for his action, according to Eidson.

Traffic advisory group selects new chairman at meeting

William Pitts, 2506 Woodlawn Drive, was named chairman of the Sedalia Traffic Advisory Board at the group's monthly meeting Monday. Pitts is employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. as an engineer.

Topics discussed at the meeting included an ordinance on speed limits in city parks, a parking lot at Centennial Park, trees and shrubs which are traffic hazards and new traffic controls.

It was noted at the meeting that, according to a check of city statutes, the speed limit restrictions currently posted within city parks are not legally enforceable. The group then agreed to recommend to the council that a separate ordinance establishing speed limits within park boundaries be adopted by the City Council. At Monday night's council meeting, City Counselor Robert Fritz was authorized to draw up such an ordinance for action at the July 7 council meeting.

It was also agreed that committee members will approach the city park board, at the group's next meeting, and request that additional parking spaces be developed for Centennial Park. Regarding the matter of trees and shrubs posing potential traffic hazards at certain locations, committee member and First Ward Councilman Allen Hawkins said he would confer with city sanitation official Gary Johnson Tuesday regarding the problem.

Man arrested for bringing movie to Sedalia

(Democrat-Capital Service)

DES MOINES — Richard Hayes, Urbandale, Iowa, was released from custody by a U.S. Magistrate here Monday on $5,000 bond pending his arraignment on charges of transportation of an obscene movie and conspiracy to violate federal law.

The charges stem from using a public carrier last Aug. 15 to take the motion picture "The Devil in Miss Jones" from here to Sedalia.

Hayes surrendered himself to the Federal Bureau of Investigation Monday, according to an FBI spokesman. He and Kenneth Hayes, Kansas City, were indicted by a grand jury here last week.

The film, featuring actress Linda Lovelace, was cancelled after its first showing Aug. 15 at State Fair Twin Cinema, Sedalia.

Loy Holman, owner of the theatre, said he removed the movie after viewing it for the first time. "I think this thing is the worst thing I've ever seen," Holman said after showing.

Sedalia City Attorney Robert Liston said he had received complaints about the film being shown in Sedalia. Liston, who viewed the film to "determine whether the film violates community standards," said the city would not prosecute Holman due to his decision to remove the film.

Elderly Sedalia woman robbed by three boys

An 86-year-old Sedalia woman was robbed Monday afternoon by three youths, each about nine-years-old, police reported Tuesday.

Lena T. Coraam, 86, 120 West Seventh, was walking in the alley near her home at about 5 p.m. Monday when the three boys came up behind her. She told police that one stood on each side of her and one behind her.

One of the boys told her that it was raining and began to help her put up her umbrella. The boy behind her then reached into her coat pocket and took her billfold.

The boys ran a short distance from her and took $5 from her billfold and dropped it in the alley. She recovered it. Police searched the area but did not find the youths.

In other police news, Leroy Freese, owner of Freese Dairy, 100 South Prospect, told The Democrat-Capital Tuesday that the receipts from two days' business were stolen Monday morning from the safe at his business.

Freese told police he put the money into the safe at 9:45 a.m. Monday and locked a closet door leading to the safe. The safe was not locked.

Freese said the only time the closet door was not in his view was when he went to the restroom, and Freese said no one was in the building when he went and returned from the restroom. He said the closet door had been opened and two money bags were removed from the safe when he returned.

Freese declined to release the exact amount of the loss. He said that the thief "had to be somebody who came in regularly and knew I was out."

A window valued at $150 was discovered broken Monday morning at Jess's Liquor, 3806 East Broadway. The window was apparently shot out with a small caliber gun between 4:30 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday, police said.

Ronald Schubert, 1206 Sue Lane, reported to police Monday morning that a portable typewriter valued at $85 and an adding machine, no value given, were missing from the office of Coy's Allied Van Lines Inc., 1123 West Main. Schubert, company manager, told police entry was apparently gained by forcing open a window on the south side of the building after 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Favorite dishes of the CIA

WASHINGTON — Most Americans are willing to put up with all the shenanigans of the CIA in the name of national security. As a matter of fact the only item in the Rockefeller Commission's report that seemed to disturb anybody was the one where it was revealed that the CIA had been experimenting with LSD and giving it to unknown victims.

Buchwald

It makes one very nervous now to go to house of someone who works for the agency.

The day after the report came out I dropped over to Blackwhistle's house to see if I could get any more information than had appeared in the commission's findings.

Blackwhistle asked me if I would like a cup of coffee.

"Yes," I said, "thank you."

He poured out the coffee into a mug and said, "One lump of sugar or two?"

"I'll take it black," I said nervously.

"It's awfully strong," he said. "Let me put one lump in for you."

"No! No! I don't want any sugar!" I screamed.

"But you always take sugar in your coffee," he said.

"I'm trying to lose weight," I replied.

"How about a lump of saccharin?"

"Please, Blackwhistle. I don't want anything in the coffee."

"All right. Would you like a vitamin C tablet?"

"What for?"

"You might catch a cold sitting next to the air conditioner."

"That's all right. I like catching colds."

"Have a cookie," Blackwhistle said. "I just made them."

"You just made cookies?"

"Of course, everybody at the agency learns to bake. It's part of our training." He showed me a book, "The Joy of CIA Cooking."

I was about to open it when he grabbed it from me and said, "I'm sorry, it's classified."

I passed up the cookies.

I sat drinking my coffee and staring at him.

Finally he said, "Have you ever thought about taking a trip?"

"I take trips all the time," I told him.

"No, I mean a REAL trip, with stars and rockets and rainbows and silver clouds."

"What the hell are you talking about?"

"Nothing, I was just thinking how nice it would be to take a trip some place where no one had ever been before."

"I'd rather go to Disney World," I said.

"How about some saltwater taffy? They had a sale on it at the CIA candy store today."

"I'm not hungry, Blackwhistle. As a matter of fact I came to speak to you about the Rockefeller report. It said the CIA was involved in assassinations, break-ins, illegal reading of mail, domestic spying and political espionage."

"Nobody's perfect," he said defensively. "How about a bowl of canned peaches with syrup on them?"

"No way," I said. "Frankly, even your coffee tastes bitter."

"That's because you didn't put any sugar in it. Here, let me help you."

I held the coffee close to my bosom to protect it. "I like my coffee bitter," I cried.

He seemed very nervous. Then he said, "Popcorn. Certainly you would like some popcorn with melted butter on it. I can make some in a jiffy. Once you taste it, you'll be out of this world."

"I've got to go. Thanks again for all the hospitality."

"Don't go," he begged. "Have pot luck with us."

"Maybe some other time," I said goodbye and dashed home.

When I walked into the kitchen my wife said, "I'm glad you're home. Would you go over to the Blackwhistles and ask if we could borrow a cup of sugar?"

Burden on the elderly

After reading, "Rent for elderly is increased" in The Sedalia Democrat ... I am wondering why the elderly citizens in the Casoloma Apartments ... have to be penalized with a rate increase of rent. Why can't they live in peace and contentment the rest of their lives without being penalized because of "inflationary trends"? They have made worthwhile contributions to society during their youth. Why can't they live in peace now?

We the community have a moral obligation to our senior citizens. Why not fulfill this obligation? They face the same problems as others (high food costs, clothing, medicine, medical supplies, etc.) but without the same resources. We as Christians should ask God to make us more sensitive to their needs, more willing to reach out to them, rather than taking from them.

In my own mind, I think that the Housing Authority can and should find some other means for "funds for maintenance costs." Surely the persons living in the Casoloma Apartments who receive a little more Social Security payments than others should not have to pay for those who do not receive Social Security benefits. Whatever they get they earned it through their work on various jobs and for some of this to be taken from them in the way of making up for others ... is deliberately taking what does not belong to you. My thinking is that this is very unfair — another wrong morally.

Ford puts fairness above political plots

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A recent tete-a-tete aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia illustrates how the atmosphere has changed in Washington.

During the presidency of Richard Nixon, he would invite loyalists aboard the yacht for strategy sessions. Their usual routine was to scheme together against his political enemies. Many a dark intrigue was hatched over brandy and cigars as they cruised down the Potomac.

The other evening, President Ford invited his Cabinet for a Potomac cruise. Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith was invited to join them, and she did a little scheming with the President over coffee and cheesecake.

But Ford was more concerned about being fair to his political enemies than doing them in. Here are a few of the contrasts between Nixon and Ford:

✓ In 1972, the Nixon crowd conducted espionage, leaked damaging documents and plotted other skulduggery against the two Republicans, Rep. Paul "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., and Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, who dared to challenge President Nixon for the nomination. In contrast, President Ford has passed the word to the Republican National Committee to give equal treatment to any rival candidates, such as Ronald Reagan or Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., who may try to beat him out of his job.

✓ Nixon concentrated almost the entire Republican effort in 1972 upon re-electing himself, with the result that some Republicans were defeated who could have been saved. This caused bitterness in the GOP ranks after the election. A few days ago, Ford visited against with Mrs. Smith in his oval office. He wanted her to build a strong party, he stressed, not a Ford cult.

✓ During the 1972 campaign, Nixon used his White House counsel, John Dean, to obstruct anyone who got in their way. Ford's counsel, Phil Buchen, was instructed to make sure the GOP assisted any Ford rivals who requested it. Buchen immediately relayed the word to the national committee's counsel, ex-Rep. Bill Cramer, R-Fla.

✓ During the Watergate era, White House operatives would call upon Republican National Chairman George Bush to perform outrageous chores for Nixon. Witnesses vividly recall Bush losing his usual calm and shouting into the phone: "No! No! No! I won't do it!" Now Ford is so scrupulous that his aides don't dare make an improper request.

✓ Nixon aides tried to use everything from Navy ships to Air Force planes for political purposes. But if Ford now makes a political appearance during an official trip, he requires the party to pay the expenses, including the cost of operating Air Force One. The GOP shelled out $26,000 for use of Air Force One, for example, after a recent political jaunt.

✓ In the old days, the Nixon team dictated to the party where the President would make political appearances. But Ford's aides recently asked Chairman Smith where Ford could do the party the most good. Party strategists carefully worked up a list of states they wanted the President to visit, including California, Colorado, Illinois, Missouri, Montana, New York, Oklahoma and Virginia. He hopes to follow their itinerary.

✓ Under Nixon, the party's ethnic division was loaded with right-wingers, including amiable Laszlo Pastor, formerly a member of Hungary's wartime Nazi youth organization. Most of the unsavory people have now been cleaned out. Pastor has been replaced by former Air Force Col. Julian Niemczyk.

President Ford at least attempts, said an aide, to follow the rule: "When in doubt, do right."

ENERGY BANK: To stimulate the search for new sources of energy, the Ford Administration is seriously considering the creation of a development bank that would help bankroll energy projects.

The whole idea would be to encourage private developers to experiment with solar, shale, coal, gas and other sources of energy, which might reduce the U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

If the developers couldn't find a commercial bank to finance their project, the proposed development bank might provide government funds. Hopefully, this would encourage an energy boom, which not only would produce more energy but also would stimulate the economy.

Energy czar Frank Zarb is now analyzing the proposal for the White House. He will submit his analysis to the Energy Resources Council, which will seek the comments of other government agencies. The Treasury Department, for example, will be asked to analyze the financial feasibility of an energy bank.

DUMP ALBERT: President Ford is breaking all records for vetoing legislation.

He already has vetoed more bills than either Dwight Eisenhower or John Kennedy, and it will take only one more veto for Ford to catch up with Lyndon Johnson's five-year total of 30.

Yet only four Ford vetoes have been overridden by a Congress that was supposed to be veto-proof.

Disgruntled Democrats, unhappy over Ford's amazing ability to sustain his vetoes, are whispering in the cloakrooms against Speaker Carl Albert. They complain he isn't building a legislative record that the Democrats can run on in 1976.

As a result, a "Dump Albert" movement is beginning to gain support.

One voice in Portugal?

In the struggle for control of Portugal, which still could go either way, a little-known newspaper by the name of Republica has become the rallying point for the forces of freedom.

A socialist newspaper, Republica has been closed down since May 20 by Communist-led printers who demanded the ouster of the editorial staff. The socialist party, which represents the only counterforce of any significance to the Communists, has demanded Republica be allowed to publish without interference.

Now the Communist-dominated communications union has called for a revision of the nation's press law, which would put Republica out of business for good. The union's goal, it says, is to oppose "the bourgeoisie and the counterevolution ... that discredit progressive information and the revolutionary process."

The union calls for all editorial decisions to be placed in the hands of "the workers." This is Marxist jargon for state censorship.

Here we have another classic object lesson in the vital role played by a free press, and the ways of tyrants who know they cannot seize absolute power until they are able to silence all unfettered modes of expression.

If Republica is permanently suppressed, then the hopes of freedom in Portugal will be that much dimmer.

College aid boost

We trust Gov. Christopher Bond will approve the bill increasing state aid to junior colleges, although he vetoed similar legislation last year. The measure unanimously passed both the House and the Senate Sunday night.

The bill gives the state's junior colleges a badly-needed boost in the aid formula, which for many years now has been too low considering total enrollment and the growing role of the community college in higher education in Missouri.

For State Fair Community College it would mean more than $80,000 in additional state aid the first year. That would be a welcome boost.

A conservative view

Minority business office is needed

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee took dead aim the other day on the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, and fired a blast intended to blow this little outfit clean out of the water. Let us hope the bombardment missed.

Kilpatrick

At least a hundred bureaus, agencies, offices, and commissions must be administering programs intended to aid minorities. The most valuable, by far, is OMBE. Most of the other agencies offer little more than Band-Aids and aspirin; they treat symptoms, not causes. OMBE's approach has greater meaning.

Created by executive order in 1969, OMBE operates out of a modest hutch of offices in the rabbit warrens of the Commerce Department. The agency has deliberately, and perhaps unfortunately, kept its profile low. Well known within the community of blacks, Spanish-Americans, and Indians, OMBE seldom is publicized anywhere else. It has 245 employees and a $52 million annual appropriation. In a government that hires 2.5 million employees and spends $360 billion, OMBE is barely a footnote.

The agency exists for one purpose only — to assist blacks and other minorities who want to go into business for themselves. It loans no money, but it encourages, assists, and provides professional advice to roughly 25,000 clients a year. To be sure, it discourages applicants also, when it appears that a proposed business venture is doomed to failure, but the approach is positive. OMBE is unabashedly pro-capitalism, pro-marketplace, pro-enterprise. To that extent, it is plainly a "conservative" outfit.

Perhaps that explains the recent assault. The House Appropriations Committee, dominated by liberal Democrats, last year ordered its staff to make a special report on OMBE. The staff spit on its hands, went to work, and dutifully produced a devastating assault.

The committee staff could find scarcely one good thing to say about OMBE. In a report that runs on for 55 pages of the blinding agate type beloved by the government's printers, the staff charged that OMBE was guilty of duplication, inefficiency, unimpressive achievements, and general incompetence. The staff saw OMBE as an agency riddled by infighting and weakened by poor performers. OMBE had oversaturated such areas as New York and Chicago, and neglected other parts of the country. In a few words, the agency was no damn good.

A more charitable view might have acknowledged OMBE's problems as no more serious, and no more novel, than the problems of many other federal agencies in their start-up years. Plenty of mistakes doubtless have been made. But look at the record:

✓ In 1969, there were 24 minority banks with $270 million in assets. Now there are 68 minority banks with assets of $1.3 billion.

✓ In 1969, there were 43 minority savings and loan institutions. Now there are 71.

✓ In 1969, some 450 minority businessmen had franchise companies with gross receipts estimated at $67.5 million. Now there are 2,450 such companies with receipts of nearly $400 million.

✓ Six years ago, only 14 minority businessmen were known to have auto dealerships. Today there are 234 such dealerships with receipts of $585 million.

This same period has seen thousands of minority businessmen go into service stations, retail trade, trucking, cable television, and construction. In 1969, the federal government made only $12.6 million in purchases from minority companies. In fiscal '74, the sum was $700 million.

It would be absurd, of course, to credit OMBE alone for this gratifying growth. The Small Business Administration has played an important role. The private sector, evidencing some enlightened leadership, has done much. Many factors have contributed.

But the Office of Minority Business Enterprise is an immensely useful catalyst. Within the minority community, it fosters those characteristics of ambition, incentive, industry, and personal dignity that are essential to the long-range assimilation of minorities into the main stream of American life.

WFL 1975 is separate from '74

NEW YORK (AP) — Football fans may not be aware of it this season, but as far as a California bankruptcy court is concerned, there are two World Football Leagues.

One is a pale phantom from 1974 trying to balance an estimated $20 million in debts against $10,000 in assets, and the other is a new, 1975 version struggling to get off the ground with the added hope it can last the 12 years it has agreed to help settle the old WFL's accounts.

In other words, the new league will play, so the old one can pay.

According to papers filed recently with a California bankruptcy court, the old WFL, which is legally severed from the WFL which will play a schedule this summer and fall, owes $6.3 million in 1974 salaries to more than 500 players. It also says it owes $559,763 to over 50 coaches, $117,071 to over 40 game officials and has claims of $1.6 million from trade creditors such as airlines, equipment companies and hotels.

Those debts total $8.9 million and do not include an estimated $7 million committed by the league in 1974 for future player salaries. Also not included are debts owed by individual teams, many now defunct.

The 1975 version of the WFL has proposed that its teams contribute between one-half and 1½ per cent of their revenues over the next 12 years to satisfy the debts compiled by the league in 1974.

However, Richard Cohn, an attorney for the new WFL's Birmingham team, said Monday that even if the latest incarnation of the WFL survives for 12 years, he doubted that it would earn enough to fully repay the debts unless a major television contract was signed.

Cohn also said that the old WFL has no legal obligation, even under its bankruptcy petition, to pay its arrears and felt it is likely that many of its past-due bills will never be paid.

Under the bankruptcy plan, the new league is accepting liability in bankruptcy court for player salaries and for debts run up by either the old league or one of the teams it operated during the 1974 season.

Included among potential creditors are a $102,830 claim from United Airlines; a $164,730 claim from the Newport Beach, Calif. law firm of Regan, Drummy, Garrett & King, who served as the 1974 WFL's legal counsel, and ones from three insurance companies — Fireman's Fund, Capitol Insurance and Provident Life — which total $240,000.

And then there is an $8,624.32 claim from former league president Gary Davidson.

Attorney Cohn said he did not know what the Davidson claim was for but believed it represented out of pocket expenses, and assured "that claim is going to be challenged."

Bucs bang out 15 hits in 10-4 win over Cards

PITTSBURGH (AP) — On June 16 a year ago the Pittsburgh Pirates ended a 40-game stay in last place and began climbing toward another National League East title.

They celebrated that anniversary Monday night by pounding the St. Louis Cardinals 10-4 with the help of 15 hits, including homers by Willie Stargell, Rennie Stennett and Al Oliver.

It was the Pirates fifth win in a row, their 16th in 21 games, and it gave them a two-game lead atop the NL East.

They're 11 games over .500 this year instead of 11 under as they were on June 16 last year, and they've batted over .300 as a team the past three weeks.

"We're doing things a lot better than we were a year ago," said Stargell, whose 10th homer gave Pittsburgh a

Nearly $3,000 raised in benefit golf tourney

Unofficially, the Walnut Hills Invitational Golf Tournament has netted around $3,000 for the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center.

The announcement was made Tuesday morning by Roger Garlich, director of the center.

This brings the three-year total to nearly $7,000, according to figures provided by Dr. Robert Stockwood, the tournament chairman.

The tournament, which attracted 180 golfers over the weekend, was won by Charles Van Dyne, Prairie Village, Kan., and John Simmons, Marshall. The pair established a 36-hole, two-man best ball record of 127, 13 under par, in winning the championship flight. The score is two better than the previous tournament mark.

Two Sedalia golfers, Dr. Frank Manatt and Noel Tanner, won the Ambassadors Flight, while H. A. Joy, Sedalia, and Bob Hart, Moline, Ill., combined to win the Senators Flight.

Bill Beykirch and Joe Bellmer, two Sedalia junior golfers, won the Juniors Flight, while Dirk Price and Don Simmons, a pair of Columbia golfers, placed first in the Governors Flight.

Vernon Bingham, Sedalia, and Jerry King, Kansas City, were the winners of the closest-to-the-hole contests on No. 2 and No. 17 respectively.

Lakers put big stake in Jabbar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Owner Jack Kent Cooke of the Los Angeles Lakers is wagering a minimum of $2.5 million that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar can turn around his National Basketball Association team.

"I am adjustable," the 7-foot-3 Abdul-Jabbar said Monday after signing a five-year contract with the Lakers. "I can play the game plan no matter what it is."

To the surprise of few, Abdul-Jabbar has become a Laker. He and Walt Wesley were traded by the Milwaukee Bucks to Los Angeles for Elmore Smith, Brian Winters and the Lakers' two first-round draft picks, David Meyers of UCLA and Junior Bridgeman of Louisville.

"A heavenly day, a delightful day," said Cooke when the acquisition of Abdul-Jabbar was announced. Cooke is the man who has to pay the bills. Abdul-Jabbar will earn at least $500,000 per year from the Lakers.

Cooke paid big money to Wilt Chamberlain, who helped lead the Lakers to an NBA title four years ago, then quit and became player-coach of the San Diego Conquistadors of the rival American Basketball Association.

Cooke balked when Chamberlain wanted a tax-free annual salary of $400,000.

After the 1969 season, Abdul-Jabbar was the top draft choice in the NBA, going to the last-place Bucks, a one-year-old expansion franchise. He was Rookie of the Year in his first season, led the Bucks to the NBA title in his second season and three times was the league's most valuable player.

"I had a strong desire to go to New York. As a youngster I wanted to play there," said Abdul-Jabbar, who grew up there and first came to national prominence at New York's Power Memorial High School before choosing to play college ball at UCLA.

Sex discrimination

Ford's signing of Title IX surprises many

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Ford, a former Michigan center, approved new federal regulations prohibiting sex discrimination in the nation's schools and colleges, including discrimination in sports, a lot of football coaches shook their heads in amazement.

"Our members are terribly disappointed and surprised," said Tom Hansen, assistant director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. "They can't believe that a football-playing President would do that to us, that he wouldn't be aware of all the dangers in Title IX, that he'd sign it."

"It's very probably going to destroy men's sports programs," Hansen said. "The members are kind of stunned and they're asking, 'Is it really true?'"

It was true. And the new regulations will further complicate the operation of men's sports programs which already are severely strapped financially because of inflation. That's why the NCAA tried, unsuccessfully, to have revenue-producing sports such as football and basketball exempted from the regulations.

Darrell Royal, head football coach at the University of Texas and president of the American Football Coaches Association, leads a contingent of his colleagues before a House education subcommittee today to protest the Ford administration regulations implementing Title IX of the 1972 Omnibus Education Act.

Another witness, Kathy Kelly, president of the National Student Association, oldest and largest of the student government organizations in the United States, argues that it is imperative that the guidelines be approved.

"While Congress recognized the enormity of the problem of sex discrimination in higher education and the urgency of implementing broad reforms by voting Title IX into existence, the law has served as little more than a paper tiger in the absence of regulations over the past two years," she said prior to testifying.

"The NSA views these regulations as a positive step toward assuring equal educational rights for women and men, and we urge congressional approval," she said.

Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., is chairman of the House post-secondary education subcommittee, which is holding six days of hearings on the regulations to see if they are consistent with the law passed by Congress.

The far-reaching rules, approved by Ford May 27 and made public by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on June 3, will take effect July 21 unless rejected by Congress before then.

The sweeping rules require equal treatment for males and females in gym classes, vocational training, financial aid, faculty hiring and many other activities, especially athletics.

After the regulations were made public, spokesman for men's sports groups predicted that they would revolutionize athletics in the nation's 18,700 colleges, high school and grade school systems across the country.

ABA draft

Battle shapes up for college stars

NEW YORK (AP) — The aggressive Denver Nuggets of the American Basketball Association not only are making strong overtures in an effort to sign No. 1 draft choice Marvin Webster, but they also reportedly are angling for the rights to the Virginia Squires' top pick, David Thompson.

Should they succeed in signing both, it would be a remarkable coup.

Webster, the 7-foot "Human Eraser" from Morgan State, was the Associated Press' College Division Player of the Year each of the last two seasons.

Thompson, the 6-5 master of the "Alley Oop" play from North Carolina State, was the major college Player of the Year each of the last two years.

And should the Nuggets corral both Webster and Thompson, the two most coveted players in collegiate basketball during the 1974-75 season, they would leave the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association awfully embarrassed.

Both Webster and Thompson were drafted by the financially ailing Hawks on the first round of the recent NBA draft.

In fact, the Nuggets could even add further embarrassment to the Hawks by signing 6-8 high school star Bill Willoughby of Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood, N.J. Both clubs picked Willoughby on the second round of their respective drafts.

There has been a report that Webster already has reached agreement with the Nuggets, but he denied it Monday shortly after the ABA draft, which was conducted by a conference call at league headquarters in New York.

In Baltimore, Webster said, "I'll probably decide sometime soon," he said, "maybe within a week."

Asked about the report that Webster already was signed, Nuggets General Manager Carl Scheer said, "Print anything you want, but remember my promise that we would sign whomever we picked."

While the Nuggets admittedly have been bargaining furiously for Webster, Atlanta apparently has not.

Webster's agent, Norm Blass, was quoted as saying that Atlanta owner John Wilcox has not made any offer while Hawks' Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons has told him to be patient.

The Hawks apparently also have not pursued Thompson vigorously.

Thompson's lawyer, Larry Fleisher, said he had negotiated with Denver last week-end and that he had engaged in only one conversation with Wilcox.

Atlanta's problems are complicated by the sale of the majority of the club's stock. The sale apparently is on the verge of falling through since the NBA fined the club $400,000 for a previous signing violation.

"I have a gut feeling that there probably won't be a sale," said Wilcox.

Without a sale, it is doubtful the financially troubled Hawks can sign players like Webster and Thompson, each of whom likely will command contracts of more than $2 million.

Orr named to squad for record 8th time

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr has been in the National Hockey League for nine years and the brilliant Boston Bruins' defenseman has been voted as an All-Star in each season.

Orr, who was a second-team choice in his rookie year, was named Monday to the NHL's All-Star first team for a record-breaking eighth consecutive year, breaking a mark he shared with Doug Harvey of the Montreal Canadiens. Harvey was a first-team choice for seven years in a row from 1951-52 through 1957-58.

The voting, conducted among members of the Professional Hockey Writers

Association in the 18 league cities, is for regular-season play only and is based on a point system of 5 for a first-place vote, 3 for a second and 1 for a third.

While post-1967 teams gained prominence on the two teams, there were some notable absences. The Chicago Black Hawks did not have an All-Star representative for the first time in 16 years while the Detroit Red Wings missed having a player on a team for the third time in 31 years.

Hours altered at S-C cage clinic

Due to unexpected large number of fifth through eighth graders at the morning sessions of the Smith-Cotton Basketball Camp, boys in grades 5 and 6 who have signed up will receive instruction between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. at the Sedalia Junior High School.

Seventh and eighth graders will go from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. The camp opened Monday and will continue for two weeks.

Philadelphia Classic

Longshot Jenkins hangs on for 1-stroke victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There was only one winner — longshot Tom Jenkins — but two other players got what they wanted out of the weather-plagued Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Johnny Miller all but secured his place on the American Ryder Cup team, regained his deft putting stroke and put his confidence at a high point going into this week's U.S. Open.

"Everything seems to be falling into place," Miller said after Monday's double-round windup. "I'm hitting the ball good. This does a lot for my confidence. And my putting is really coming around. It's a good feeling."

And even disappointed Bob Wynn, who blew a golden chance for his first official victory with a horrendous eight on the 71st hole, found a figurative ray of sunshine amidst the rain that hit the 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

"I'm disappointed but I'm not disgusted," said the 35-year-old Wynn. "I got what I came for. I came in hoping to make a check big enough to put me in the top 60 (money winners for the year). I did that, so I can't complain."

Jenkins had a five-stroke lead when the double round began. He retained it with a two-under-par 69 in the morning round, then just held off Miller by one stroke with an afternoon 72. He finished with a 275 total, nine-under-par.

The key was a clutch, 15-foot, par-saving, downhill putt on the 71st hole.

"That was the putt that won the tournament," said Jenkins.

previously a non-winner in three years on the tour.

Miller parred the final four holes, finishing with a pair of 68s and second at 276.

He jumped to seventh on the Ryder Cup point list — a team of 12 will be named — and regained the season's money-winning lead from absent Jack Nicklaus. Miller, who collected $17,100 from the total purse of $150,000, now has $179,630 for the year, Nicklaus $173,239.

Wynn, playing about 1½ hours in front of Jenkins and Miller, had a two-stroke lead going to the 17th hole, once an easy par five but now a tough par four. "I choked," he said.

He put his drive in a fairway bunker, hit the lip coming out, ricocheted off a tree with his next and finally hit his fourth in another sand trap. He came out poorly and was in the rough in five. He chipped to two feet — and missed the putt.

He had to chip in to save par on the final hole. When the gallery burst into applause, he responded with a hand clutched to his throat.

Still he won $10,650, pushing his year's winnings to $38,205, a figure that now puts him among the exempt players for next season.

Jenkins won $30,000 and also secured an exemption.

"It's a great feeling knowing you're not going to be facing that Monday qualifying," he said. "Now I can plan my life a little."

Cook, Suttle only Big Eight players picked in ABA draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Two University of Kansas players, Norm Cook and Rick Suttle, were chosen Monday in the second round of the American Basketball Association college draft.

Utah drafted Cook and later in the same round San Antonio, using a selection gained in a trade with Kentucky, took Suttle.

Cook, a 6-9 center, is listed as an upcoming junior on the Kansas roster. Suttle, also a 6-9 center, was a senior the past year.

The only other area player was Ken Smith of Tulsa, who was selected by San Antonio in the fourth round.

The St. Louis Spirits tabbed Gus Williams of Southern California in the first round. They drafted Rudy White of Arizona State in the second. Rudy Hackett of Syracuse in the third, Tom Roy of Maryland in the fourth and Larry Fogle of Canisius and C. J. Kupec of Michigan in the fifth. Kupec came by way of a trade involving Denver and Utah.

The Spirits took Al Jones of San Diego in the sixth, Al Spruill of North Carolina A & T in the seventh and Ted Hathaway of Cleveland State in the eighth.

U.S., Russia meet is canceled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 16-year tradition of an annual United States-Russian track meet has been broken.

"This is a sad development," Ollan Cassell, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union said Monday in announcing "with great regret" that the U.S.-USSR track meet scheduled for Kiev, Russia July 4-5 had been canceled.

"Numerous contract violations by the USSR All-Sports Committee left us with no alternative," he said. Among them was the denial of U.S. television rights to the meet.

Cassell said the Soviets had earlier signed a contract granting the AAU the television rights in his country for the customary exhibition meet, but they have now decided to renege on that agreement.

"Without the revenue that would accrue to us from television," he explained, "we are unable to finance the trip."

A team of approximately 66 men and women would have been sent to Kiev. Cassell said he had made "repeated efforts" to urge the Soviets to abide by what he said were the terms of the contract, but they had refused.

Cassell, who competed for the U.S. when the meet was last held in Kiev in 1965, said a triangular meet with Poland and Czechoslovakia scheduled for Prague on July 7-8 was also jeopardized by the cancellation.

In 1974, when the U.S.-Russian competition was held in Durham, N.C., the U.S. squad won the men's meet, 117-102, but lost the women's 90-67 and bowed over-all 192-184.

What good is a guarantee on the muffler when your tailpipe goes?

There's more to an exhaust system than a muffler. There's a tailpipe, exhaust pipe, clamps and hangers. And statistics tell us that the tailpipe often goes before the muffler.

Yet most of the people who repair exhaust systems only give a lifetime guarantee on their mufflers. If you have to buy a tailpipe and it goes, guess who pays? And you could pay as much as $35.

We give you a 100% guarantee on 100% of our work.

Seaver, Madlock share NL honor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New York Mets' pitcher Tom Seaver and Chicago Cubs' third baseman Bill Madlock are the co-winners of the National League Player of the Week award. President Chub Feeney announced today.

Seaver pitched two shutouts last week while Madlock batted .533 over the seven days ending Sunday, raising his season average to a league-leading .360. Madlock was 11-for-13 in a series against Cincinnati last week.

Other nominees for the week included Cincinnati's Johnny Bench and Pete Rose, who batted .467 and .469, respectively.
